NOVELTIES FOR FARM AND HOME

Boots and shoes are prevented from squeaking by an air channel placed between two filling pieces at the sides of the heel and extending forward in the sole of the shoe, the air chamber being fitted with a valve for inflation.

To minimize the danger of fracture of lamp chimneys a new burner has a plate in which the chimney rests and is clamped fast with a screw, which is tightened when the lamp is lighted, so that sudden changes of temperature will not break the chimney.

In a wickless night lamp just out a cup floats on the surface of an open oil chamber, with a burner tube in its center, which extends down into the oil and brings the fluid near enough to the top of the tube so it can be ignited and feed itself through the tube.

An improved piano stool has a double socket attached to the seat base to support the revolving post which holds the seat, a pin sliding in the upper socket to enter holes on the post and lock it at any desired height, and the sockets turning on each other to allow the seat to revolve.

Candles for lighting purposes are being made without wicks, a central hole being left in the candle, in which rests a metal wick carrier, the heat of the flame melting the sides of the candle and causing the wax to flow into the carrier, to be drawn up through the asbestos wick and feed the flame.

A new potato-digging machine has a steel-pointed scoop to raise the potatoes and earth onto a slotted elevator, over which a cylinder brush is revolving to separate the potatoes from the dirt, after which the tubers are carried to a screen, which allows the small potatoes to fall into one box and carries the large ones into another box.

When a newly-designed lamp is accidentally upset it is prevented from exploding by means of a weight set in the base, with a chain running to the extinguisher, the device being rendered inoperative when carrying the lamp by grasping the chain when lifting the lamp by the hand, and the lamp is protected from fracture by pneumatic tubes.

FOREIGN CHAT.

Some queer law is being made in England. Mr. Justice Kennedy has just decided that a wife may sue her husband for libel. The parties were living apart under a separation order, the wife earning her own living, and the husband kept sending defamatory telegrams to her.

Poland has lost her greatest living poet in Adam Asnyk, who has just died at Cracow at the age of 59 years. His reputation rests on his lyrics, though he wrote several dramas. He has spent the greater part of his life in exile, as he was driven out of Poland on account of his share in the insurrection of 1863.

President Faure's bath is troubling the French radicals. He is not content with the British tub, but washes all over. He insists on having a bath compartment in his private train, and asks for one at the places where he stops. It cost the town of Valence 6,000 francs to fit up a bath on the occasion of the president's recent visit.

At Toulon, the bed of the sea was lighted up from a balloon attached to a tug, in the hope that a lost torpedo would be detected. The experiment was successful.

In France the sex of silkworms is now determined, while they are yet in the cocoon, by means of the Roentgen rays. This determination, which is necessary in the separation of the sexes preparatory to breeding, has hitherto been carried on rather uncertainly, usually by weight, the female cocoon being generally slightly heavier.

There are 110 mountains in Colorado whose peaks are over 12,000 feet above the ocean level. Forty of these are higher than 14,000 feet, and more than half of them are so remote and rugged that no one has ever dared to attempt to climb them. Some of them are massed with snow, others have glaciers over their approaches, and others are merely masses of jagged rocks.

Plants useful to man are estimated to number about 15,000. Among them are 5,000 roughly classed as economic and food plants. The above includes 1,100 edible fruits and berries and 300 edible seeds. Fifty are reckoned among the cereals, and 40 as uncultivated edible graminaceous seeds. Four hundred and twenty are classed as vegetables and salads and 260 are listed among the tubers.

Not every widow wears black on account of her deep grief. Sometimes black is so becoming to her. — Washington (Iowa) Democrat.

There is no prettier sight in the world than that of a healthy, happy mother at play with her robust and rolicking baby. It is a sight entirely too infrequent. Too often the baby is puny and peevish and the mother sickly, fretful, and nervous. The woman who neglects to take proper care of herself and who therefore suffers from weakness and disease of the organs of womanhood cannot be healthy and amiable. Her children will be puny and ailing and happiness will pass by on the other side. There is no reason why every woman should not be the healthy, happy mother of robust and playful children if she will take the proper care of herself. Proper care means, first of all, proper medicine for her ailments. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will make any woman strong and well in a womanly way. It cures all weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism. It prepares a woman for motherhood. It insures the health of the baby. It makes parturition easy and nearly painless. Over 50,000 women have testified to its virtues, in writing. Druggists sell it and have no substitute "just as good." The druggist who tries to force something else upon you is not an honest man. He is trifling with your life and happiness for the sake of a greater profit to himself.

Mrs. F. E. Forgy, of Carson, Kyapaha, Co., Neb., writes: "I write to you again concerning my daughter, Mrs. D. Billings. She has taken two bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two of 'Golden Medical Discovery.' She thinks the medicines did her a world of good. She was confined the 13th of February. Was sick about three hours, and now has a ten pound daughter. She got along nicely afterward. She says she never felt so well. She looks well and her complexion is clear."

The modern business world won't stand still or loiter to wait for the man who suffers from headaches, biliousness and dyspepsia, caused by constipation. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Of druggists.

E. Katz, Agent.THAT WAVE OF PROSPERITY AND WHEAT

Has that wave of prosperity, of which everybody heard while only a comparatively few felt it, spent its force and receded? Six weeks ago it was considered treasonable by the goldbugs to allege that there could not be permanent prosperity until there is an increase in the volume of money and that the advance in the price of wheat and some other products was due to a shortage in crops caused by drought in other countries. Now that the apprehension of famine from a failure of the crop in Russia, India and the Argentine has to some extent been allayed, prices have taken a downward turn and the wave of prosperity, which we were told was to submerge the entire country has, unfortunately, subsided. Wheat has dropped about fourteen cents a bushel since early in September, and other grain products have fallen proportionately, while cotton has fallen about two cents per pound. Farmers who marketed their wheat early in September received a better price than at any time since 1891, but those who did not have to take the chance of selling at less than the present price before next summer, will probably hold their grain for better prices. Who among those who believe that the tariff schedules has brought permanent prosperity to the country will advise a farmer to hold his wheat for better prices? and what assurance can be given that grain will be higher or lower than it is to-day before another crop is harvested? It is a gamble with the farmer who has wheat to sell whether to hold it for a better market or dispose of it now. He may gain or lose by keeping his grain, but which, he does not know. If the advance in price was due to the tariff, the farmer would know exactly what to do, as the present tariff laws are certain to remain in force for a year or two, but as the price was advanced by reason of short crops in other countries, the farmer not knowing the extent of this shortage is in doubt whether to hold on to his grain or dispose of it now.

While it is probable that wheat, of which there is a great scarcity in the world as compared with other years, will not be any lower during the winter than it is to-day, the farmer has learned from the decline of fourteen cents per bushel in the price at Chicago in the last six weeks that the tariff and the so-called wave of prosperity said to have been caused by the tariff have nothing to do with the price of wheat, which depends upon the demand for the grain and the supply on hand.

THE TARIFF AND WHEAT

Mr. Reed and the Dingley bill put a tariff on wheat and other products, of which we produce a surplus for which we must find a market in Europe, for no other known purpose than to deceive the unsophisticated. They claim that the advance in the price of wheat, beef and some other articles is due to this tariff. In the face of their assertions and as proof that their claim is unfounded wheat and beef is as high in Canada as in the United States. The demand for both is greater than usual and they command higher prices in free trade as well as protected countries. The tariff has nothing to do with the price of any thing of which we produce a surplus unless that surplus is controlled by a trust, but with necessities such as sugar, for instance, which we have to import from other countries and which are controlled by trusts, the tariff has much to do, as it enables the trusts to fix the price at which they shall be sold to consumers. If the wheat producers of the country could organize a trust to control the price of wheat they could compel the consumers to pay more for it at home than it could be sold for abroad, but the price of wheat in Nevada and California is fixed in Liverpool. The Standard Oil Company, by controlling the product of oil in the United States, can fix the price of the commodity and no doubt, the company sells oil which it exports to foreign countries at lower rates than it charges at the refineries. Farmers could do the same with wheat if they had a trust that controlled the whole wheat product of the country. As it is the tariff does not increase the price of wheat and it sells as high in British Columbia as it does in Oregon and Washington.

Private advices from Washington tell why a carpet bagger was appointed to the Nevada Indian Agency over the heads of several applicants from this State. At a Cabinet meeting called to discuss Nevada appointments President McKinley stated that his illustrious predecessor, Grover the Great, held that a citizen of a silver producing State, who voted for the single gold standard was not a safe man to entrust with Indian affairs, and as he had great confidence in his predecessor, as had also Mr. Hanna, he would, at the suggestion of Mr. Hanna appoint a gentleman from New York who had the endorsement of Senator Platt to the Nevada Indian Agency. The President's views, especially as they accorded with Mr. Hanna's, were unanimously approved by the Cabinet and Mr. Spriggs of New York is to be Indian Agent.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

It is reported that another filibustering expedition from the United States has landed on Cuba and joined the insurgents.

The union carpenters who struck at the exposition grounds at Omaha Monday have returned to work, having gained a victory on every point.

The Toronto express on the Canadian Pacific collided with a freight at Stillville, Ont., yesterday morning, killing an engineer, mail clerk and two tramps. About 5,000 troops will leave Spain for Cuba before the end of the present month. The military authorities are hurrying the shipment of troops to the island.

Orders were issued to Commodore Howell yesterday to take command of the European station and to Commodore Dewey to take charge of the Asiatic station.

Fred G. Hughes of Arizona has been charged with forgery and embezzlement of $3,000, a sum appropriated by the Legislature of that State in behalf of the Historical Society.

Mathew Rogers, a grocer of Baltimore, and his mistress, Ida Wright, were found dead in Rogers' house yesterday morning. The police look upon it as a case of murder and suicide.

Thirty-five hundred miners of the river district, who have been idle for the past two weeks near Pittsburg, have returned to work on condition that their grievances be submitted to arbitration.

The United States steamer Philadelphia arrived from Honolulu yesterday morning and proceeded to Mare Island, where her crew will be transferred to the Baltimore and the latter will leave for the Sandwich Islands.

The London papers published editorial yesterday urging the British cabinet to discourage any tampering with the currency and entered a general protest to any move on the part of the government in the direction of bimetallicism.

John A. Casson, formerly a member of the House of Representatives from Iowa and an ex-Minister to Austria, has been appointed a special agent of the Department of State for the negotiations of reciprocity arrangements under the Dingley tariff law.

Lee Bottom, a driver of a fire steamer at Denver, while answering a fire alarm yesterday morning, was thrown from his seat. The engine passed over his body instantly killing him. W. R. Morley, a fireman, was thrown from the engine and was fatally injured.

Charles Harris, a pioneer miner of California, has been arrested on a charge of arson. He is charged with setting fire to the mill and hoisting works of the Moser & Roanoke mines in Calaveras county. He is a brother of the superintendent of the mines.

R. N. Ruffin, the San Francisco attorney charged and convicted with defrauding the Occidental Hotel out of several weeks board for himself and wife, appeared before Judge Conlan yesterday and was fined $250 with the alternative of imprisonment. He gave notice of an appeal.

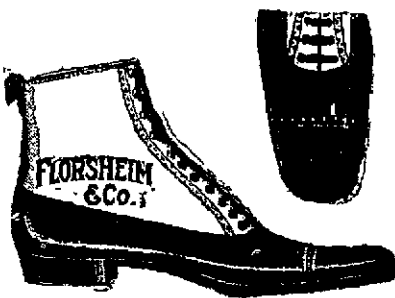

William Herald of Delta, Cal., and Under Sheriff Radford were shot and killed and Deputy Sheriff Stewart was seriously wounded yesterday morning while attempting to arrest Herald for complicity in the Yreka and Fort Jones stage robbery Sept. 28th. The stolen money had been traced to Delta and Herald was believed to be one of the robbers. Yesterday morning the officers went to his house and knocking on the door told Herald they wanted to see him. He replied, "I'm ready," and began firing. Stewart was shot in the leg and fell and Radford was killed instantly. Stewart emptied the contents of his revolver into Herald, who died soon afterwards.

The letter of Justice Field to the Chief Justice and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court at Washington notifying them of his determination to retire from the bench on December 1st and that he had transmitted his resignation to the President, was given to the public yesterday. Also the letter of President McKinley accepting the resignation and acknowledging the long continued service of Justice Field, now over thirty-four years, the longest period of any judge ever on the Supreme bench.

Justice Field was appointed by Abraham Lincoln and has survived all the members of the court of his appointment. In speaking of his appointment by President Lincoln, Justice Field said, "It is a pleasant memory to know that my appointment came from President Lincoln." The volumes of the U. S. Supreme Court show that he has written 620 opinions. Adding to these his opinions in the Circuit Court and those while he was on the Supreme Bench of California, a total of 1,042 cases will be the result.

THE Gazette of last evening accuses the Silver papers of howling over the appointment of Spriggs of New York as Nevada's Indian Agent. The Gazette must have forgotten that about three days ago it howled for a whole column telling of the outrage, or next to it, that had been perpetrated on capable men in Nevada by the appointment of this federal pop hunter from a distant State, and that the Enterprise and one or two other goldbug papers have republished the Gazette's howl. If any silver papers have been howling over the appointment of Spriggs it was doubtless owing to the sympathy felt for some of the disappointed ones who sacrificed their own interest and the interest of State and their neighbors in the hope of office.

BANANA GROWING.

The Native of Central America Depends on It for His Living.

But He Has to Work But a Fortnight to Secure Food for a Whole Year—How the Fruit Is Grown.

The headquarters of the banana trade in Nicaragua is Bluefields, until recently the capital of the Mosquito reservation, whence about 1,000,000 bunches are, or were, annually exported to the United States.

But for the banana and the plantain the natives of Central America would have to live by the sweat of their brows; possessing the banana and plantain, they may toil or not, as they please. There is no necessity. A fortnight's intermittent labor will supply a man and his family with food for a year. During the 11 months and two weeks remaining they may swing in their hammocks if they think fit. Their dinner will always be within arm's reach, so to say. One of the "notions" of that much misunderstood and unfortunate reformer, Col. Walker, the "filibuster," was to destroy every banana and plantain tree in Nicaragua. It would have been a task for Hercules. Whether he was in sober earnest, or merely expressing a wish, is of no consequence; he was right in his conclusions. Only by doing so and making replanting a penal offense could he hope to overcome the innate indolence of the people and compel them to be industrious and happy.

For the planter with small means—that is with a capital of $1,000 upward—I know of no occupation so certain to realize a decent income as growing bananas, provided that the plantation is within easy reach of the sea, and there are steamers to carry his produce to New Orleans, New York or London. That is of prime importance. For the rest, he may till the soil and it will laugh with a harvest. He need not take any risk. He may sell his produce to the captain of a fruit steamer for 25 cents a bunch, pocket the money and have done with it. And this plan has many advantages.

The banana is cultivated from suckers springing from the roots of an existing tree, generally known as the "stool." These suckers are detached and planted. They strike and shoot up so fast that it is no great exaggeration to say that you can see them grow. In a year or less the planter harvests the first crop.

The banana has no trunk, but a soft, fibrous, so-called stem, composed of the leaf stalks rolled one over the other which grows to from ten to twenty feet in height, and withers after the fruit has ripened. The tree is seldom known to seed. The roots, however, furnish shoots or suckers year after year, until the stool is exhausted. The purple flower blossoms on long spikes, springing from the cluster of leaves which appear to open out from the stem. The flower spikes are often four feet long, and the bunch of fruit which succeeds the blossom comprises from eight to twelve dozen bananas, weighing from 30 to 60 pounds. The leaves are from six to ten feet long and from one to two feet wide. When the leaves are newly opened the tree has a most graceful appearance.

For successful cultivation a cool, rich and moist soil is required, the alluvial deposits of the river bottoms, or the higher land where rain is abundant or water plentiful. Bananas grown on high ground are said to be finer than those of the valleys.

In preparing a plantation the trees and brushwood should be cut down, and after lying a month to dry, burned and the ashes spread over the land. The suckers, which, being very abundant, may be purchased at a low price, are then planted at a distance of from 12 to 15 feet apart, or say 200 to the acre. In Mexico, as will be seen presently, they are often planted much more closely, 1,000 trees to the acre being common. After the first crop is harvested the stems should be cut down, chopped into short lengths and heaped around the roots, whence spring the new suckers. —Philadelphia Press.

FOR EVENING WEAR.

Panel and front breadths will be a most attractive feature to the new ball dress. The sash ends are worn very long and wide.

The hair arrangements are more elaborate than they used to be. Al-grettes spring from twists of tulle and generally there is a tendency to "dress the hair."

Delightful boas and neck arrangements are made of "caterpillar" tulle, which is very fine silk net, with a dewy substance trailed over it. Feather boas are still in great favor and they will tide us over to the fur season.

Ball gowns show a tendency toward undue brightness. Salmon pink is trimmed with sea-green tulle or mauve velvet. Many of the bodices are cut in graceful curves, like shells, and sometimes a black velvet ribbon connects the scallops, fastening with a diamond buckle or slide.

Black-and-white harmonies are as much worn for evening gowns as for street dresses, a little color being introduced to do away with the idea of half-mourning, vivid red glaze silk being much used for the purpose. All evening frocks are brightened this fall with magenta, apple-green or turquoise velvet, put on in "barrel hoops" about the bodice. The addition of a white sash is newer than a colored waistband.

FOR THE HOUSEKEEPERS.

When ink is spilled upon linen, try dipping the damaged material in pure melted tallow. The hot tallow seems to absorb the ink, and, after washing, the stain will be found to have disappeared.

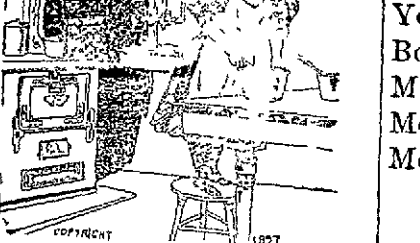

When the fingers are stained in peeling fruits, preparing green walnuts, or in similar ways, dip them in strong tea, rubbing them well with a nail brush, and afterward wash them in warm water and the stains will disappear.

To defend one's self from the dust and chinders from the open car window just in front of a highway passenger, take a newspaper, fold it in rough plait, and fasten it fanwise to the back of the forward seat. The newspaper receives the chinders, and the victim be-lieved is relieved.

The best pie plates are those of tin with straight sides about an inch high, so there is no danger of the contents of the pie running over. Porcelain lined pie plates do not bake so well on the bottom as those of tin. The old-fashioned pie plate of yellow stoneware is a mistake. It is responsible for the sodden under crusts of old time pies.

Her Idea of It. "It won't be long," said the man who loves to talk science at the table, "before all our engines and that sort of thing will be run by the heat of the sun."

"But," asked his wife, "if they go using up the heat of the sun that way won't it make the weather too cold to grow crops?"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

BREVITIES.

Water pipe laid cheap by Lange & Schmitt.

Window glass cut all sizes at Lange & Schmitt's.

Mrs. Woodbury of Empire changed cars for the west last night.

Crookery, glassware, tinware and gateware lower than ever at Lange & Schmitt's.

Pearl gloss tooth powder is absolutely harmless. Sold by Reno Drug Company.

Hon. E. Strother returned from the East yesterday morning and left for the Comstock.

Mrs. Ella Chamberlain returned from California last evening very much improved in health.

Rubstaller's Gilt Edge beer at the Wine House, also all kinds of fancy and mixed drinks.

Frank Bettman, the popular traveler spent the day here yesterday interviewing his customers.

Mrs. W. T. Craig and son returned from a visit to Blaine, Washington, yesterday morning.

Knapp & Street tamales at Ritter's. Families or tamale parties furnished on the shortest notice.

Universal cook and heating stoves, and cheaper grades sold at cost to reduce stock at Lange & Schmitt's.

C. M. Ryan of the Truckee Republican arrived in Reno last evening and made the JOURNAL office a pleasant call.

The largest assortment of artists' material in town at the Porteous Decorative Co.'s store on Virginia street.

The District Court met yesterday and continued the case of the Union Ditch Company vs. Jas. Winfrey to October 25th.

Letter has sweaters for man or boy; also rubber overcoats and a splendid stock of winter underwear at prices that defy competition.

The lunches at the Granite Saloon cannot be excelled and the beer is served ice cold. A choice stock of wines by the bottle or gallon.

The storm yesterday made matters very quiet about town. Some of the old timers shook their heads wisely and prophesied a hard winter.

Jake A.olph of Truckee was a visitor to Reno last evening. It is said that Mr. Adolph has a heart affection that nothing but the altitude of Reno will cure.

C. Novacovich has just received a carload of the celebrated Pioneer flour. He also has the chicken and oyster tamales in cans—something new and delicious.

Messrs. Henderson and Wiggins of Empire have struck a ledge rich in gold and copper near the Logan mine, about six miles from Empire. The specimens are very rich.—News.

Evangelina Cisneros is the principal topic of the Examiner. The next move will doubtless be to bring her out on the stage in a dramatization of her escape in which she will appear as the heroine.

Archie Allen of Rubicon Springs, Lake Tahoe, arrived in town yesterday on his way to the Comstock. He has closed up the springs for the winter. He contemplates many improvements there next year.

Hon. R. F. Gilbert of Nye County, met with an accident on Wednesday last. The horse he was riding stumbled and fell on him. Luckily the injuries received by Mr. Gilbert are not of a serious nature.—Courier.

S. Emorich's new stock of dry goods, ladies and childrens jackets and capes, ladies and childrens underwear is as complete as most any store can furnish and prices are still the same as before the tariff came into effect. oct10tf.

Call at Muller & Stumpf's Pastry agency for fine California and imported wines for family and medicinal purposes. Sherry, port, muscatel, angelica and all dry wines by the gallon. Open every day until 8 o'clock. tf.

About an inch of snow fell at Verdi yesterday. From Verdi to Boca the storm was quite heavy for this time of year, but at Truckee the weather was comparatively mild. It is reported that nearly a foot of snow fell at the Summit during the late storm.

Garpaw, the man who assaulted T. K. Hyman nearly two years ago and was sent to prison, got into a row with a man named Kelley at Carson the other evening and struck him with a billiard cue. He was arrested yesterday and held to appear before the Grand Jury. He had just completed his sentence at the prison.

I have just received a complete and well selected stock of gents' furnishing goods, underwear, overshirts, socks, suspenders, handkerchiefs, ties, etc., which I guarantee to be equal if not better than any in the town, which I will sell at prices that defy competition. My stock of domestic and imported cigars and tobaccos is complete in every particular, comprising such brands as the Nerve, Carl Dunder and Royal in the 5-cent goods, and El Belmont, Sanchez, Hays, De Vallens, International, Hotel Brunswick, General Arthur and many others in the imported goods. Call and be satisfied. Free employment office in connection with the store. tf A. NELSON.

A RUNAWAY.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Lonkey Have a Narrow Escape.

O. Lonkey, the lumber and wood merchant, his wife and a lady friend met with a thrilling experience this morning while starting from this city for Verdi with a rockaway and a pair of horses.

The party entered the rockaway on O street in front of the office of Mr. Lonkey's lumber yard, and Mr. Lonkey, who was driving, started the horses. The fastening which connected the body of the runn ing gear gave way, and the running gear was drawn out from under the former, which was dropped into the mud.

The horses sprang forward, and Mr. Lonkey, failing to drop the lines, was dragged over the dashboard and into the street and drawn through the mud for some distance. When he relinquished the lines, the horses dashed through the thoroughfare northward to Carson street. Here, while going at a mad gallop, they collided with the back action of a Reno freighter, which was standing on the street.

The wagon, to which no horses were attached, was facing south, and the runaway team crashed against it with terrific force, the horses going one on one side and one on the other side of the short tongue. The impact drove the rockaway's pole through the front of the wagon deep into its cargo of coal oil, and both of the horses were thrown down with great violence, one of them striking his head and turning a somersault.

Neither Mr. Lonkey nor the ladies were injured, the latter not being even thrown from the rockaway, but the horse which turned the somersault had the top of its head nearly cut off and will have to be killed. The other horse was somewhat injured, as was the rockaway. The pole of the latter was drawn out of the oil wagon with difficulty.—Virginia Chronicle.

REFUDIATION.

The Republican Press Joining the Great Procession of "Calamity Howlers."

EDITOR JOURNAL: The following paragraph from an editorial in the San Francisco Chronicle of Oct. 10, 1897, shows that the McKinleyites begin to see that repudiation will be the inevitable result of compound interest and the gold standard. The prosperity boom is waning and the Republican press is beginning to hedge.

"With constantly increasing national expenditures and the assurance of continued additions to the irreducible indebtedness of the most of the Governments of Europe, it is plain that the time is approaching when their tax-ridden subjects will demand some kind of an adjustment of their national obligations that will relieve them wholly or in part of the interest-paying burdens that are crushing their hopes and paralyzing their energies. They cannot be depended upon to struggle and starve forever to sustain the credit of Governments that are hopelessly bankrupt. The bondholders will be called upon to make substantial concessions—to consent to interest abatements and refundings that will take from their holdings a large part of their value. Should they refuse to comply, the people will make the adjustment themselves by wiping out their indebtedness like a line of figures from a blackboard. No international law will be interposed, nor will there be protection for alien bondholders, for the great settlement will extend to all nations, and no Government will be found to protest. Tumult and financial convulsion will follow, and for a time thereafter Governments will make an effort to live within their means." FARMER.

Reno, Oct. 14, 1897.

Was Not Asleep at His Post.

It was thought that the late Mark L. Wilson had met his death from falling asleep from sheer exhaustion and fell from the train on which he was a brakeman. A very thorough investigation has been made regarding this, and it is now believed that the accident was owing to a heavy wind and the speed at which the train was moving.

It is thought that the conductor saw him sitting on the car, and probably rose to a standing position and a gust of wind, together with the velocity of the train, made him lose his footing on the car or caused him to step backward and off the car, and before he could save himself fell to the track. No one saw him fall, consequently cannot tell how the accident occurred. His own crew did not miss him until after the train had reached the station.

The Yavai Work.

In no way can we do more good than in restoring the sick to health. This Yavai will do, if intelligently used.

The Sacramento Bee in commenting on the relay race last Sunday says that the Reno boys would have probably won had it not been for the accident to Johnson.

The relatives of the late Mark L. Wilson feel deeply grateful for the kindly aid rendered them in their hour of trouble. The poor boy was gently laid to rest yesterday afternoon, a large number attending the funeral.

William Smith, while feeding a threshing machine at the Opbir ranch about a mile from Dayton on Wednesday, lost his foot hold and fell into the feeder. A companion grabbed him as he fell, but not soon enough to save Smith from having his arm and leg terribly lacerated.

A friendly suit has been commenced at San Francisco by the Crocker Estate Co., against Charles E. Green and H. T. Scott, executors of the will of the late O. F. Crocker, to secure the transfer of the stock now standing in the name of Crocker on the books of the Pacific Improvement Company. The amount involved is $921,105 72.

There are Jack the Ripper and Jack the Clipper and other Jacks, but Reno has some kind of a "varmint" that on three or four occasions has scored and slashed the sides of the V. & T. car, the last occasion being on Sunday, the day of the relay race, when the cars standing at the depot were disfigured. The officers ought to lay for this fellow and make a shining example of him.

Frank Bettman, the popular drummer, purchased a small checked gingham jumper at Nathan's store yesterday during Louie Cohn's absence. Frank put it on and it looked real swell, as the girls would say, and Cohn thought it was a new pattern golf shirt and wanted to order a half-dozen. When Bettman showed him it was one of Nathan's 50-cent jumpers, Lou went out in the back yard and talked to himself.

ALASKAN CANNIBALS.

Gold Seekers Will See Them En Route to the Klondike.

Queer Aborigines Whose Customs and Habits Are Based Upon Beliefs in the Supernatural.

Along the coast of southern Alaska dwell some very queer aborigines, as gold seekers flocking to the Klondike region will surely discover. They do the most of the freighting across the passes into the interior, carrying loads on their backs, but their population during many centuries has been so shut away from other tribes by gigantic ranges of snow clad mountains that they have developed a peculiar culture and customs unknown anywhere else. Hence the exceptional value of a monograph about them prepared by Dr. Franz Boaz, a distinguished ethnologist, which is to be published shortly by the National museum.

These natives may be said to live largely in a world of imagination, inasmuch as their customs and habits of living are based to a great extent upon ideas and beliefs wholly supernatural. Creation, from their point of view, is peopled by strange monsters and demons, which, while morally hostile to man, may be rendered friendly and even helpful with the aid of certain ceremonies of a quasi religious character.

For example the most important of these monsters is a serpent which has a head at each end of its body and a human head in the middle. To touch this strange monster these natives believe is death, all the joints of the victim becoming dislocated, but specially favored individuals are enabled to perform wonderful feats by wearing a belt of its skin, while its eyes, used as sling stones, will kill any animal, even whales. Another of these fabulous beings is a wild woman who lives in the woods. She has enormous breasts, and carries a basket, into which she puts children whom she steals for the purpose of eating.

One of the most remarkable of the festivals celebrated by the Indians is a carnival of ghosts, which is held each winter. It seems to be derived from a tradition that tells of a journey made by an adventurous individual to a region beneath the earth, inhabited by phantoms. The celebration itself is a mimic representation of the visit to Hades aforesaid, and the performer who represents the subterranean traveler wears a necklace and headdress strewed with skulls.

Cannibalism is very conspicuous in the myths current among these people, who have themselves been eaters of human flesh up to a recent period. Indeed, though the whites are supposed to have put a stop to such practices, it would seem that secret indulgence in them has not been wholly done away with.

Quite a number of strange demons are worshipped as guardian spirits—among them a cannibal demon that lives on the mountains and is always engaged in the pursuit of human beings for his table. The smoke of his chimney is the color of blood, and he has a female slave who gets food for him by catching men and collecting corpses. In his house is a fabulous bird, with an immensely long beak, which lives on the brains of persons whose skulls it fractures with its bill. Anybody who is so unfortunate as to encounter the cannibal spirit may be transformed into a grizzly bear. On the other hand, if he can please the demon, he may obtain power to handle fire without being burned.

Another guardian spirit is a fearsome warrior who lives in the far north. He travels constantly, and never leaves his canoe. By obtaining his protection a man may become invulnerable, or he may acquire power to catch the invisible disease demon. This demon is at all time flying about in the air in the form of a worm. The fortunate protegee of the warrior spirit catching the worm can throw it into the body of an enemy, who will die at once. The suggestion of the modern germ theory of disease contained in this belief is quite interesting. Not to be neglected among the guardian spirits are certain ghosts, which bestow the power or returning to life after death.

D. Boaz has secured for the National museum a large number of masks, such as are worn by the Indians of the Alaskan coast in their ceremonies. Some of them are of enormous size and astonishingly grotesque.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Arctic Game.

The rabbit supply is now reinforced by hundreds of thousands of frozen rabbits from Australia, and the price of home-bred rabbits has fallen in consequence. In spite of the murderous destruction of sub-arctic game, the regions from which it comes are so huge and the facilities for catching it, by freezing it and transporting it by sledges so great, that we may expect the supply to be larger each year rather than less. It seems incredible, but it is true, that Russian game can be brought from St. Petersburg to Lead-enhall market at a cheaper rate per ton than Surrey fowls can be brought from Horsham to London. The Trans-Siberian railway will tap another enormous game area, and the supply from the two extremes—the tame pheasants of England and the uninhabited forests of the sub-arctic continent—will continue to stock our markets. Frozen pheasants and other game are regularly brought into London market from Peking.—Cornhill Magazine.

Injustice.

"Your honor, I want to tell you the other side of this story." "I don't want to hear the other side, what do you mean trying to confuse the court?"—Yellow Book.

SUMMONS.
IN THE SECOND JUDICIAL DISTRICT
Court of the State of Nevada, in and for Washoe county.
The State of Nevada ss to Dan Wm.
Taylor greeting:
You are hereby required to appear in an
action commenced against you as defendant by Mrs. Dan Wm. Taylor as plaintiff in the Second Judicial District Court of the State of Nevada, in and for the county of Washoe, and answer the complaint therein with ten days after the service on you of this summons (exclusive of the day of service), if served in said county, or twenty days if served outside of said county, but within said district, and in all other cases forty days; or judgment by default will be taken against you according to the prayer of said complaint. The action is brought to obtain a decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony heretofore and now existing between the plaintiff and defendant, upon the grounds that the defendant did on or about the day of June, A. D.
1897, commit adultery with one Myrtle Eliot, at the town of Elko, county of Elko, and State of Nevada, and upon the further ground that the defendant did on or about the day of June, A. D. 1897, commit adultery with one Emma Gleason at the town of Elko, and State of Nevada, and on the further ground that defendant did on or about the day of June, A. D. 1897, commit adultery with one Emma Gleason at the town of Elko, and State of Nevada, and that the defendant is guilty of adultery with said Myrtle Eliot, and State of Utah, and on the further ground that defendant did on or about the day of June, A. D. 1897, commit adultery with said Emma Gleason, at the town of Elko, and State of Nevada, and that plaintiff is entitled to a decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony heretofore and now existing between the plaintiff and defendant, and to such other relief as the court may deem proper. And you are further notified that if you fail to appear and answer said complaint, the said plaintiff will enter a judgment against you for the sum of $100,000, and for costs, and the said judgment will be entered against you on the 28th day of August, A. D. 1897.
F. H. PORTER, Clerk of the Second Judicial District Court of the State of Nevada, in and for Washoe county.

LIP TALK.
A New Science That Will Manifest Itself in Many Ways.
Those who are moderately well informed are aware of the fact that the deaf and dumb are being taught to understand from the motion of the lips of the person with whom they are conversing. This is not so difficult as it may appear at first thought. With a fair amount of practice anyone can become more or less proficient in the method. At least a case that is reported in this city would seem to establish the fact.
A gentleman who has a daughter who became interested in the subject practiced with her at odd times, and they became almost expert in the business.
They had worked with each other at many odd hours, and enjoyed the experience with something that approached scientific satisfaction. There was a practical side to the matter, also,
that gave them a great deal of sport.
They took frequent street car rides during the summer for the purpose of practicing their specialty. Whenever they could get in position to study the lips of two or three who were conversing in whispers, they would repeat to each other what they supposed was the subject of conversation. They differed but seldom as to the talk of subjects scrutinized.
That they might always have a good vantage ground, they would ordinarily take the front seat of the summer cars, as it faces all the other seats and affords a fair view of the occupants of the car. One night they were immediately opposite two young girls who were in a talkative mood. Their comments were about the occupants of the car, and especially pronounced about a young man blessed with good looks, who was sitting within range of their eyes.
Shortly they turned their attention to the gentleman and his daughter.
Now, as concerns the appearance of the two, there is enough difference to indicate the relationship, but the demonstrator of each to the other was such that the Chatterers were puzzled.
"That old duck's on the mash," said one.
"The little girl's got on stylish duds," said the other.
"Perhaps they got off at ———'s garden," mentioning a popular resort on the hillside, said the first.
"She makes me tired. 'Sthant chiney silk she's got on, I wonder."
"Now, shiny gingham, I guess."
"That's a diamond she's got on her hand."
"Oh, you can't tell," and so on ran the remarks.
As the couple under discussion left the car, the daughter leaned out and said:
"He's my father; we're not going to
——'s garden; this is silk, and my ring is a diamond."
When they had left the car one girl said: "Well, gee whizz, they've got good ears." — Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

PROBATE NOTICE.
IN THE SECOND JUDICIAL DISTRICT
Court of Nevada, Washoe county.
In the matter of the estate of Nathan Stanley, deceased.
Mary E. Palmer and Clara A. Ward, having filed in this court a paper purporting to be the last will and testament of Nathan Stanley, deceased, and praying that the same may be admitted to probate, and for the issuance to them of letters testamentary thereon, Notice is hereby given that Saturday, the 16th day of October, 1897, at 10 o'clock A. M. of said day, at the courtroom of said court in Reno, Nevada, has been appointed as the time and place for hearing said application, at which time and place all persons interested may appear and contest the same.
F. H. PORTER, Clerk.
Dated September 29, 1897. td

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT.
NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE undersigned has been duly appointed and qualified by the Second Judicial District Court of the State of Nevada, in and for the county of Washoe, as the Administrator of the estate of Mary G. Lewis, late of said county, deceased. All claims against said deceased will be considered if presented within time and according to law.
J. V. PECKHAM,
Administrator.

SUMMONS.
IN THE SECOND JUDICIAL DISTRICT
Court of the State of Nevada, in and for Washoe county.
The State of Nevada ss to Emma Peterson greeting:
You are hereby required to appear in an
action commenced against you as defendant by J. E. Peterson as plaintiff in the Second Judicial District Court of the State of Nevada, in and for the County of Washoe, and answer the complaint herein within ten days after the service on you of this summons (exclusive of the day of service), if served in said county, or twenty days if served out of said county, but within said district, and in all other cases forty days; or judgment by default will be taken against you according to the prayer of said complaint. The action is brought to recover judgment and decree of the Court dissolving the bonds of matrimony heretofore and now existing between you and said plaintiff, upon the ground of wilful desertion for a period of more than one year, to-wit: ever since on or about the 8th day of November, 1896, and against his will, with or consent.
All of which will more fully appear from the complaint, which is on file in the office of the Clerk of said Court, at Reno, in said county, and to which you are especially referred. And you are further notified that if you fail to appear and answer said complaint, the said plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded.
In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the Seal of said Court, at Reno, this 15th day of September, A. D.
1897. s21w6 Attorney for Plaintiff.

Washoe, State of Nevada.
The State of Nevada ss greeting to Dominico Porretti:
You are hereby summoned to appear before me, at my office, in Reno Township, in the County of Washoe, on the 15th day of November, A. D. 1897, at 10 o'clock A. M., to answer upon the complaint of C. G. Colombo, which was to recover judgment against you for the sum of $100, alleged to be due upon your promissory note, said note bearing date the 20th day of July, 1894, for $100, bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum, said note being filed and constitutes a part of said complaint, all of which will fully appear from the complaint on file. And you are further notified that judgment will be taken against you for said sum, with costs and damages, if you fail to appear and answer.
To the Sheriff or any Constable, greeting:
Make legal service and due return thereof:
Given under my hand this 16th day of August, A. D. 1897.
Justice of the Peace for said Township.

CITY MAN IN THE COUNTRY.
Farmers Milk in the Old Way, But Everything Else is Modern.
"We who live in the cities never know about the country. We imagine that we are the only ones who get the advantages of modern inventions, and that the farmer plays around in the mud the same as he did when we were boys."
"Why, I learned more during those two days on the farm than I ever expected to know about farming. Now you helped to thresh when you were a boy. I did, I know. I can't date back to the time when the men used to cradle the grain and then beat it out with flails, but I happened along in the time of the reaping machines. These binders hadn't come in yet. We used to thresh the grain with one of those horse power separators that you could hear two miles away when it got to grinding. You know the kind, I suppose—five or six teams of horses going around on the power and a man up on the big cogwheel platform in the center cracking a whip over them. That kind of a machine was a horse-killer and no mistake. It took about five minutes of digging to get started and it was hard pulling all the time. Then if the feeder happened to let a wet sheaf get in crosswise the cylinder would stick and every horse would go up in the air. You probably remember that when the traction engine came in everyone said that it was the final improvement. It knocked out so much grain that the separator had to be fed from both sides—two hand cutters; two men to put the grain into the wagon and three or four men to stack the straw. Did you ever work at the 'tail end of the machine,' as they used to call it? Had to wear goggles, you know, Chaff flying so thick that it got in your ears, nose and mouth, down your back, sticking to you and tickling wherever you were wet with perspiration, which was everywhere; straw piling up around you and threatening to bury you unless you worked your way out; sun about as hot as no shade! And yet the agricultural papers used to wonder why boys left the farm!"
"Well, when I was at Ezra's I went over with him to look at an improved threshing machine. I wouldn't have believed it. They don't need anyone at the 'tail end of the machine' any more. Instead of the old-fashioned straw carrier, with its belts and slats, the improved separator is provided with a 'blower,' shaped just like a big smokestack, and all the straw and chaff is forced through this by powerful fans.
This 'blower' carries all the dust and chaff away from the machine. In the old days you couldn't see the machine, for a cloud of dust surrounded it. But,
as I started to tell you, there are no men on the strawstack any more. That big 'blower' swings around and distributes the straw, making a good semi-circular stack. There are no men at the other end of the machine, either.
The twine bands are cut by a patent cutter, and the sheaves are carried to the cylinder by an automatic feeder.
All the men have to do is to pitch the sheaves up on the platform and the machine does the rest. After the cuts are finished out they are carried to the top of the machine, weighed and measured and dumped into the wagon. All that the man at the wagon has to do is to keep the grain scooped away."
"The way that grain comes out is a caution. It takes a very few minutes to fill a wagon. As a matter of fact, about the only labor in the threshing now-days is the hauling to and from the machine. You can probably remember the time Miller, when 1,000 bushels was considered a big day's threshing; but I understand nowadays they can knock out 2,500 to 4,000 bushels. If they could only invent some device to keep grain at a good price they'd be all right, wouldn't they?"
"It's remarkable," said Miller. "I didn't know that the machinery had been improved to that extent."
"It's the same with most kinds of farm work," said Goodwin. "Ezra was talking up his haystacker. It seems dreadful, but it isn't much pitching any more. And you know how they plant corn now, don't you? I don't, but I understand you don't have to put a hoe to drop the corn. They've got everything now except a corn husker, but Ezra says that a man wants to kill him one for this fall, so if I go back next year Ezra will probably be sitting in the house reading a paper, while the machine is out husking his corn.
Yes, everything's different. Ezra's wife did her cooking on a gasoline stove.
The wind pump draws the water, and I believe it works the churn, too. They milk the cows in the old-fashioned way, but that was about the only thing I recognized." — Chicago Record.

The Cats' Friend Dead.
Lonely cats, deserted by their owners or lured from their homes by heartless boys, have lost a good friend in Miss Annie Mayhew, who died a short time ago in England. This woman was the founder of a cats' home, and her whole time and energies were devoted to caring for deserted and stray cats, on whose behalf she was constantly appealing to the kindly hearted. Every summer she issued an appeal through the press to persons leaving town, begging them not to forget poor puss, leaving it to starve in their absence. Miss Mayhew was a firm believer in the theory that there is a happy hunting ground for felines in the future and that human beings and animals will somewhere meet again in the great hereafter. It comforted her to think that in some way pussies who had suffered gross cruelties at the hands of men and women in this life might some day have their compensation. — Cincinnati Enquirer.
